MENTAL HEALTH: | Resources |

NEWS 9: | Download Our Apps |

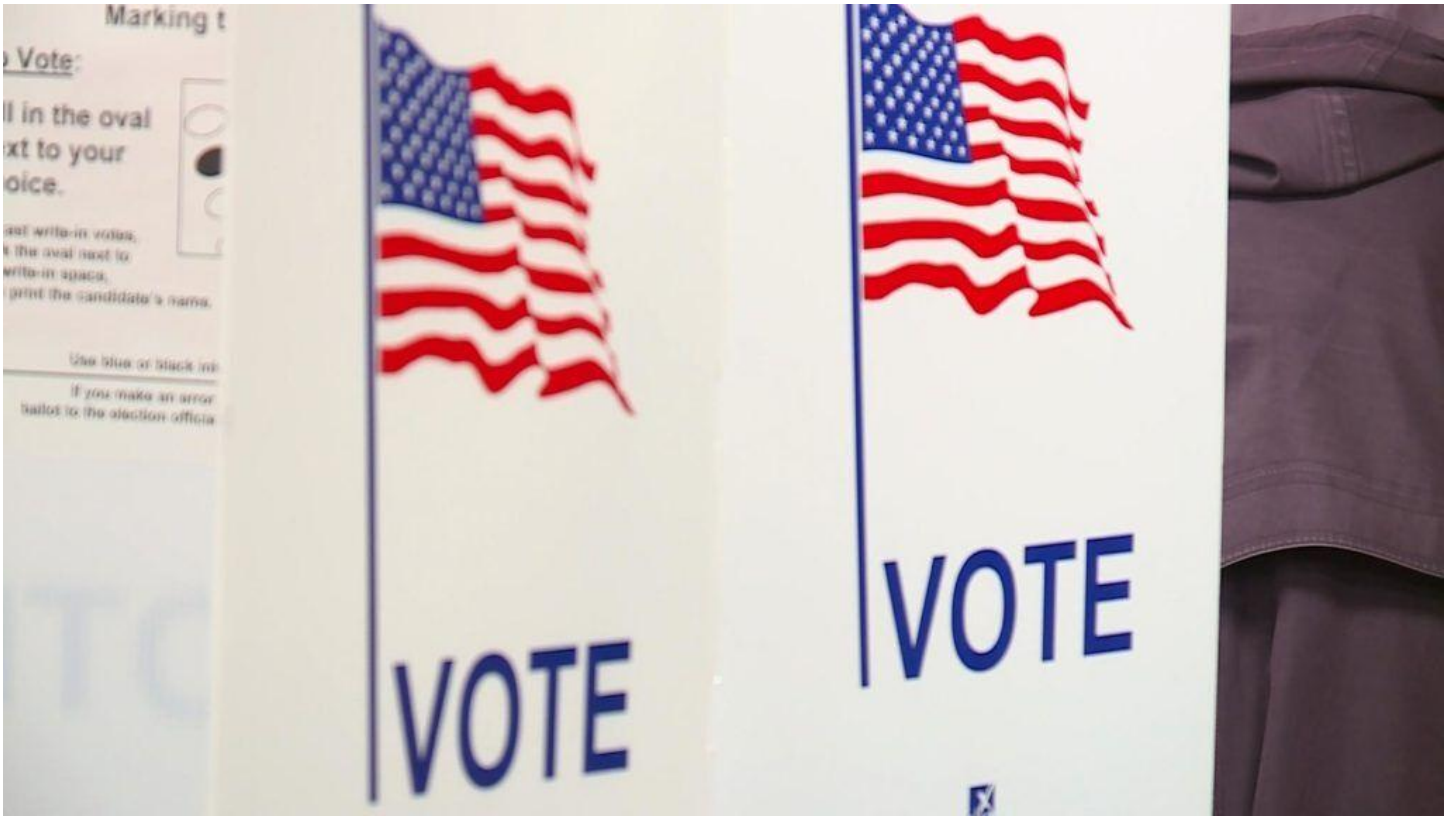
https://www.waow.com/news/politics/area-town-clerk-accused-of-voter-fraud/article_f2f73716-7a41-11ec-95f4-db0594889ae2.html

Area town clerk accused of voter fraud

By Courtney Terlecki
Jan 20, 2022



By Chris Watkins

Mary Gebert, the town of Bergen clerk, is facing several felony charges related to voter fraud.

Marathon Co., Wis. (WAOW) -- Mary Gebert, the town of Bergen clerk, is facing several felony charges related to voter fraud.

The incident dates back to the 2020 presidential election.

Investigators say at the end of the night, the poll workers couldn't find one of the voter numbers. However, the numbers need to match.

Court documents say because they couldn't get the numbers to match, Gebert signed a random person's name without their knowledge. However, that person no longer lived in Bergen and had voted in their new town.

Gebert reportedly admitted to signing the name.

In court Thursday, a judge ruled she can continue her position as town clerk, however she has to be supervised by someone else when involved in elections.

At the time of the signing, investigators say Karen Kupla, the Chief Inspector Election Day, and Angela Domagola, a poll worker, were also there and knew Gebert signed the name fraudulently.

Kupla and Domagola are also facing felony charges.

Have any story ideas? You can send them to news@waow.com

Tags Mary Gebert | Town Clerk | Politics | Angela Domagola | Felony | Karen Kupla | Investigator | Fraud

Courtney Terlecki