A man convicted of voting twice in the November 2006 election has been sentenced to a year in the Milwaukee County House of Correction.

Milwaukee County Circuit Judge William W. Brash III sentenced Michael Zore, 45, of Wauwatosa, on charges that he voted in Wauwatosa and another Milwaukee suburb, West Allis, under an old address a few hours later.

After a computer caught the double vote, Zore was charged with voting twice and providing false information to poll workers.

Zore had contended that the double voting was the result of a stress-induced memory lapse.

He told Brash in court Friday he was saddened and ashamed about what he did.
